

In the Abstract

(currently amended) The present invention concerns a modular air supply system for a vehicle, normally a truck or bus. The system comprises a base unit (1) forming an interface to different modules of the air supply system. Such further modules may include an air treatment module (2), an electronic drier unit (3) and air distribution module (13).